

Sprint retrospective week 8

Ellen Widerstrand, Henrik Lagergren, Isabelle Ermeryd Tankred,
Louise Larsson, Nils-Martin Robeling, Oscar Orava Kilberg, Sara
Hillström

May 16th 2019

What went well in this sprint?

In this sprint we have had a good flow during meetings and have had a focused way of working. This is probably a lot thanks to us getting used to working with scrum and our will to make the final delivery as good as possible. We had some problems with the merges of the different branches, but managed to solve them though working together and discussing the issues.

What could be improved?

Some flaws have arisen when testing the entire flow of the page. Some small, but vital parts were missing or are working the wrong way. This could have been avoided by being more aware of how the different parts are connected from the start and noting if one components function is unclear. In that way these issues could have been dealt with over a longer time instead of taking all of them when we are short on time.

What will we commit to improve the next sprint?

This is our last sprint, but if we had one more we would make sure to not just be aware of the customer value our specific user story created, but also how it is important for the value of surrounding components (when applicable).