What do I want to learn and understand better?

I still want to get better at react. Last week i completed a tutorial and this week I've read a little bit more about react, I'm now excited to start coding.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

This week we've split the group into smaller groups and with smaller group I think it's easier to learn from each other. I've taken a interaction design course and I think my experiences from that course can be helpful for the group when it comes to design decisions.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

We've made a storyboard and divided user stories among the smaller groups. Together we've discussed effort and velocity for the different user stories.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I have not contributed as much as I wanted this week. I had to stay home in the beginning of this week due to illness and was unable to contribute in the beginning of the week. But I helped with the group reflection and as mentioned above, to put a velocity and effort on the storyboards.
