What I want to learn and understand better

My primary focus is still to learn the basics in React. Since last time I have set up the environment for development and watched the tutorial. Beginning of this week we made up the user stories and broke them down to different requirements. One thing I hope I will learn more about is common challenges in software development and to get a hunch about how to estimate the effort for specific requirements and tasks. Luckily, I will have plenty more sprints to to so.

How I can learn someone else something new

Still, I hope to contribute with an alternative perspective on the business opportunities from the platform than the majority of the group. Since we had our meeting with Håkan this Monday it had become evident that this perspective is very important not to forget.

My contribution towards the teams use of Scrum

I took part in defining the user stories and making sure they covered all parts they were supposed to cover. Forthermore, I helped in defining both the product and upcoming sprint backlog. I am also set to be product owner for three of the user stories in our sprint backlog.

My contribution towards the final team delivery

I have contributed in the work I mentioned earlier with the scrumboard, but also in developing the first user stories. I have been in time for meetings and actively taking part in discussions.
